

ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE MR. PAINE

The N. Y. Herald contains the following notes:

Washington, Oct. 6.

H. M. Price, of Oxford, Mass., who has been long interested in, and in this case engaged with, the two assassins by his books—Life of Washington, $2,500, and three times as many more in Mass., by some mysterious and mysterious means, has again had a narrow escape from death—the narrowest, as far as he can now ascertain, evidence in his favor.

Price is at present boarding at the T. H. Hotel in Newbury. He came on some time ago, partly to see safely delivered at the National Observatory, a globe made in France in Oxford, Mass., for astronomical observations, the determination of latitudes and longitudes, &c., a very ingenious piece of mechanical mechanism by the work and power of right himself before the people of Washington, in reference to the execution of the accused attempt at his life, the examination of the wounds or scars upon his person. The examination was accordingly had, last night, since at the U. S. Hotel, at which about a dozen gentlemen were present, and all appeared to be entirely satisfied that Mr. Paine's complaints were founded upon conclusive testimony—the marks on his legs, his breast, and his fore-head.

According to the statement of our land agent, Messrs. Tyler and Birch, for the winter was absent from the house at the time of about quarter past nine this evening, Mr. Paine was standing in the porch of the hotel, which is but a step above the level of the side walk, and was in conversation with two gentlemen, one in close proximity, upon each side of him. Mr. Tyler was also within the porch at the time, about ten feet distant from Mr. Paine and his friends. At about twenty feet distant several backs were standing on the Avenue, opposite to the porch. At about, with a sudden start, Mr. Paine drew up his hands and caught his hat, which appeared to be driven backward from his head against the granite column, in front of which he was standing, one of the columns within the porch supporting the main body of the building. He immediately retired within the hotel, and on examining his hat, called Mr. Tyler, who found it perforated on both sides in a direct line, as if a bullet had passed through it diagonally over the head of the wearer, the ball having as it lived from a position in front lower than that occupied by Mr. P. Mr. Birch went to the spot where Mr. P. had been standing, and found a large battered slug, wrapped in paper, at the foot of the granite pillar, and a distinct indentation in the pillar corresponding to the range of the shot.

A number of persons at once set out in various directions in the darkness, to arrest the retreat of the assassin, but did not succeed. It is supposed Mr. P. was fired at with an air gun, from behind one of the backs. No report was heard, as far as we can learn.

The Water Wreck. An experimental trip of this government steamer was made yesterday, under the superintendence of Messrs. John Farren, Wm. Myers, and John Southall, appointed for the purpose, by the Bureau of Naval Construction at Washington. The performances of her engine come up to the most sanguine anticipations of all who have interested themselves in this subject.

Dr. Banning's Patent Lace. Dr. Banning's Patent Lace. The Whitehall Democrat, noticing there the arrival of Big Thunder, on his way to Clinton county, says he conversed freely, did not deny his criminality, but insisted that he had acted an honorable part; and that in what he had done he had represented 200,000 honorable men! His courage, however, failed him, we understand, when he reached the prison, and he gave way, to deep dejection despondency and tears.

"A minute and authentic narrative of the conduct and conversation of John B. Gough, during each day of his late absence, as related by the inmates of the house at which he stopped," has been published in New York, by L. C. Donald.

More Shooting. The Helena (Arkansas) Journal states that Dr. Temple, formerly of that place, shot a young man named McGivern, at Delta, Miss., for the seduction of his daughter, a young lady of fifteen, a short time since. McGivern's heart was pierced by two balls from a double-barreled gun, and he was not expected to survive. After being shot he presented a pistol at Temple, but it missed fire.

The Press and Type of Mr. Clay. C. W. Clay very properly refused to have anything to do with the press and type of which T. F. Marshall, J. B. Clay, and their coadjutors had possession, and which they shipped to Cincinnati. We presume, of course, he will bring an action for damages against those gentlemen, so that they may yet have to pay dearly for their whilst.

There is a man in this city says the N. Orleans Picayune, who fancies himself a steamboat boiler. He is constantly suffering the most severe misery under the impression that his wife will blow him up. Strange to say, he is about as simple-minded yet he has not the least apprehension of any evil consequences from this cause.

A wag remarked the other day that Big Thunder was the most successful of all inventors, having obtained a feat for life real fire.

L. B. Clark elected to Congress in Carrington's district, in Tennessee, as a leader of Whigs, and within years ago entered upon the duties of a schoolmaster in that State.

In some parts of Connecticut the "woman folks" have but a "sorry look" for male money—they outnumbering the males three to one.

NEW ARRIVAL and increased Demands. Another new supply of Boxes, &c., every's Children's Pictures and Girls' Pictures (for which there has been and still remains a great demand) for sale. Steele was quietly disengaged and armed, but not doing any particular act, was guilty of a felony?" The court replied "undoubtedly he was." At half past eight they recessed their verdict of guilty of murder. The prisoner exhibited no emotion—the jury were far more affected. Judge Parker then suggested to the counsel for the prisoners, that there was a vast amount of business before the court, nearly one hundred being indicted for murder. It was not expected that all indicted for this offense would be hung, and public justice did not require a full example to be made of all the prisoners. It seemed to him best that most indicted for murder, and against whom the proof was clear that they were present, disguised and armed, when Steele was killed, should plead guilty of manslaughter, which would save a vast amount of time, labor, and expense. In accordance with this suggestion sixteen persons then pled guilty to being disguised and armed, at Shacksville, while six others were ordered to recognize in bonds of $500, to keep the peace for a year, six pleaded guilty to manslaughter, one in first, and the remainder in fourth degree; these were discharged and two plead not guilty.

Judge Ruggles and Attorney General Van Buren arrived on Wednesday, and on Thursday the counsel for the people were to bring trial the case of Moses Earl, indicted for murder. It was expected that some time would be consumed in obtaining a jury—Boston Courier.

THE ANTERTEN TRIALS.

Lamentable consequences of crime. We are indebted to Mr. Reynolds of the North America, for an extra Delaware Express, 11th inst., from which we make the following summary of sentences on the Delaware Anti-Renters.

On Saturday morning, O'Connor was convicted of murder, and at 10 o'clock the court assembled to perform the melancholy duty of passing sentence. The prisoners were variously affected by the pronouncing of sentence upon them. Van Steenberg, Brisbane, and several others were deeply moved, while O'Connor, Squires, Earle, and some others, appeared hardened to their fate.

Van Steenberg and O'Connor were sentenced to be hung, on Saturday, 29th November.

To state prison for Life—Daniel W. Squires, Moses Erie, Zera Preston and Daniel Northrop. In Northrop's case, the court intimated that should his conduct warrant it, they would intercede for his pardon, in 2 or 3 years.
